RE: Happy endings

This is my notice of leaving the employ of Visto Corporation. My last day as an employee of Visto Corporation will be in two weeks, on March 19, 1999.

In the 16 months I've been with Visto, I've had more fun working than at any job in my life. If fun was the only criteria for driving a career, I would never have an opportunity to be dissatisfied.

However, my career path includes factors which are no longer on a parallel path with the duties Visto requires from me. While Visto appears to most need my HTML development skills, I prefer to drive my career as publisher and writer, not exclusively as a web developer. At my performance review it was made clear that Visto does not yet need a publications manager.

Thank you for the growth and fun of the last 16 months. I will cherish my Visto experiences for the rest of my life.

Sincerely,

m. g. gadzikowski
